INTRODUCTION

Position is located in the Command Analysis and Planning Office of the U.S. Army Simulation, Training and Instrumentation Command (STRICOM), a major subordinate command of the U.S. Army Materiel Command (AMC). The mission of STRICOM is to provide centralized management and direction for all research, development, acquisition and fielding of Army training devices, simulations, simulators, test and training instrumentation, targets threat simulators and Advanced Distributed Simulation (ADS). The mission includes cradle to grave life cycle acquisition beginning with tech base programs and following through with each phase of the acquisition process. The Commander centrally directs, coordinates and supports the materiel development, acquisitions and sustainment activities through the functional matrix organization and four project managers.

MAJOR DUTIES

1. Serves as lead command representative on Integrated Concept Teams (ICT) and other multidisciplinary teams, comprised of other Army, DoD, Industry and Academia representatives, formulated to provide visionary and practical solutions to complex battlefield deficiencies. Interacts directly with TRADOC school commandants, combat developers and training developers to define, document and defend materiel requirements which result from modifications to current doctrine, training, leader development, organization, materiel and soldier (DTLOMS) structure. Gathers and assesses appropriate cost data to be used by decision-makers during the requirements determination process. 20%

2. Investigates, receives, reviews and analyzes materiel requirements which evolve from various means, including TRADOC schools, battle labs, other MACOMs, the Force XXI Joint Venture and field commanders. These materiel requirements may take the form of Mission Need Statements (MNS), Operational Requirements Documents (ORDs), Required Operational Capabilities (ROCs), System Training Plans (STRAP) or Test and Evaluation Master Plans (TEMPs) or Simulation Support Plans (SSPs). Provides valuable input to the requirements documentation process which addresses actual or potential shortfalls in the training and testing mission areas, as well as insight into other current or future requirements which may impact or provide leverage to proposed new starts. 20%

3. Investigates, researches and reviews Science and Technology Objectives (STOs), Advanced Technology Demonstrations (ATDs) and Technology Demonstrations (TDs) and their potential impact on future training, testing and evaluation requirements. Documents future warfighting concepts and Army goals in the Science & Technology area for both command-wide and Army-wide long range planning efforts. Provides this information to ICTs and other multidisciplinary teams that influence the Army requirements process.

4. Develops and documents a medium to long-range business forecast for the command which describes and substantiates anticipated levels of funding from various sources. Business forecasting efforts will encompass the budget year, Program Objective Memorandum (POM) guidance, Future Year Defense Plans (FYDP) and beyond citing practical levels of documentation and rational throughout the forecast period.
